High as my heart! the quip be mine
That draws their stature to a line,
My pair of fairles plump and dark.
The dryade of my cattle pass?
Here by my window close I sit,
and watch (and my heart laughs at it)
How these my dragon-lilles are Alike and yet dissimilier.

From Fornopean womankind
They are divided and defined
By the free limb and the plain mind,
The nobler galt, the naked foot,
The indiscreter perticoat;
And show, by each endearing cause,
Mere like what Eye in Eden was—
Buxom and free, flowing and fine,
In every limb, in every line,
Inimitably femidine. nlo-wild;
